“Everyone has a talent if we look and understand their needs and be educated. There's always a job.”

– Ron Kore,
owner of Sobey's
in Fonthill, Ontario

... it's a win-win situation; the employees I hired through ableworks.ca are worth the investment...

Hiring Based on Ability

Ron Kore, owner of Sobey's in Fonthill, Ontario, has a personal understanding of what it means to have a disability; he also knows there is always a job for someone who wants to be productive.

Ron currently has two employees working at his store who were recruited using ableworks.ca. The process began when a recruiter interviewed Ron to learn about his needs and his retail operation. The recruiter gained an understanding of the grocery business as well as the various departments; and in Ron's mind, this was a critical first step that resulted in sourcing only the right candidates for the job.

The relationship between ableworks.ca and Sobey's continued with the recruiter assisting Ron with the training process and providing job coaching as needed. Ron has always received a positive result with the ableworks.ca team who provide 'hands on' support to not only the employee, but the employer.

Today, Ron's employees hired through ableworks.ca have been doing a great job and provide excellent service to customers; the feedback he has received from customers has been very positive for his business and his staff. In fact, Ron believes you wouldn't even know his employees have a disability; they don't use that as their excuse; they have it and they move on.

Ron believes if every employer hired one person with a disability, our society would be just a little bit better. He wants other employers to know everyone has a talent and businesses can be profitable while doing something good.
